The idea of sitting around a bunch of people on an airplane, talking loudly on their cell phones, without regard to others, is more of a nighmare than a thought. Add the screeming babies, the guy who has had too many pre-flight beers, and assorted other characters, and what was once a mostly stress-free situation into an incredible circus. Please don't let cell phones be used on flights!